Alan Peter Cayetano, Tagalog-Pinaric congressman, is launching a pila to distribute balut (duck embryo) in his Senate campaign. Chinese traders who introduced this specialty settled in what's now known as Pinoy, for "pinoy" (Chinese) and "balut" (duck embryo).

JESUS' BURIAL SITE: The faithful traditionally believe Jesus was buried at the site where the Church of the Holy Sepulcher now stands in Jerusalem. In the Bible account, Jesus was taken down from the cross by his family and friends led by Joseph of Arimathea and laid in a tomb where He was for three days before He rose from the dead.

'THE LOST TOMB OF JESUS'

No reason to rewrite Christianity

By Randolph C. Flores, SYD

(Editor's note: The author is a Bible and Hebrew language professor at the Divine Word Seminary in Taguig City.)

HIS DISCIPLES MAY GO AND STEAL him away. (Matthew 27:64)

This was what the chief priests and the Pharisees expected would happen after Jesus' death as they went to Pater-na Pastor the day after with a request that a guard be stationed at Jesus' tomb.

In that culture, like ours, where deception, lying, hypocrisy and envy are social strategies, the missing corpse would prove that Jesus had risen from the dead. In the Bible, Jesus was in the tomb for three days before his resurrection.

Does the above passage (Matthew 27:64) indicate that Jesus' body was buried, if not stolen, in another tomb?

The feature documentary, "The Lost Tomb of Jesus," premiering today on the Discovery Channel, is an intriguing attempt to shed light on this question.

The executive producer of the documentary is James Cameron of "Titanic" fame and the director is family-owned screening documentaries, Brenda Jo Roberts.

2 party spokesmen speak out

'Mr. Cool Guy' has ace up his sleeve

By Juliet Leibel-Jarvella

IT LOOKS LIKE THE MAY ELECTIONS will not be just a boring battle for the Senate between Team Unity and the Genuine Opposition but also a fierce contest between the two good-looking campaign spokesmen deployed by each camp.

And Team Unity's Joseph 'Yoy' Hochhaus Durano knows he's being compared to G2's Adel Tansano—like himself an American law graduate—in some ways they are.

"People ask who is more handsome, as I say I have already answered that Adel is the 'cool' guy 'cause' and I am just the 'smash' guy 'cause' I'll be honest if only my wife has crush on me," the 36-year-old Durano says.

ADEL TANSANO: With a resume that can upstage that of many candidates for the Senate, he's the first Filipino Muslim with a master's degree in Law from Harvard.

Driven pragmatist finds job a breeze

By Norman Berdeles

WHEN HIS SON, SAN JAMMAYOR Joseph Victor Berdeles, bowed out of the Genuine Opposition's senatorial drive, depressed President Joseph Berdeles named two 'principled oppositionists' as possible replacements.

One was Justice Roco, widow of the late senator and presidential candidate Paul Roco. The other was lawyer Adel Tansano, a religious scholar.

Justice Roco is now part of the GO ticket. But Tansano did not take.

"To run for a national post is one thing. Winning is another," he said to the Inquirer.

AmCham says figure could go up to $9B if ...

By Michael Lim Ubac

INDICATING INTERNATIONAL investors' renewed confidence in the Philippines, the American Chamber of Commerce of the United States would be putting in this year up to $3 billion worth of investments in the country's infrastructure, manufacturing and information technology sectors.

Robert Scott, the AmCham executive director, made this announcement at a roundtable discussion with President Miguel Arroyo on Friday on the improved fiscal situation and business optimism in the country.

Scott said the "optimistic" moment of AmCham members was that the figure could "potentially go up to $9 billion in a year if the government would take care of some old investments."

"I think the confidence level this year is higher than at the same time last year," he said.

Scott said US businessmen and other foreign investors in the country were not too concerned about the results of the midterm elections in May.

"Business can't wait... [They] are proceeding as if there were no elections because they're here..." he said.

Agri dep't food depots bring markets to neighborhoods

By Tina Arana-Duandao

FOR OVER 10 YEARS, VENDOR CRESANTA Bana had been going to the Puthy or Puthy public markets as early as 1 in the morning to get her stock at the fresh meat and vegetable bins delivered from the provinces.

Coming any later would mean the 53-year-old mother of five from Barangay Sigay, PVO Complex in Taguig City would be left with rotten and third-class meat and vegetables, which might be rejected by the customers she delivers them to.

Since her over P2,500 worth of vegetables were too heavy for her to carry, she had to spend another P150 to P200 to hire a jeep from Puthy to Puthy to her home in Taguig, then adding to her expenses.

Those days of hardship are finally gone, thanks to the opening of the Barangay Food Terminal (BFT) near her neighborhood at Barangay Sigay on Feb. 24.

The Taguig BFT project of the Department of Agriculture and the Taguig local government directly links the suppliers to retailers and wholesalers like Bana, thus eliminating the middlemen.

This way, farmers and livestock raisers can sell their products at higher prices, while the retailers can get their products

NOT YOUR LITTLE ANGEL, I WITNESSED A HORROR Marched behind my wife's fiancée, wedding what she believed a young bride, she said. "In the Old Testament, there are two Commandments, but in the New, our Lord Jesus Christ has replaced them in favor of the old and new commandments: love and honor one another lovingly forever."

Greg Jennings (Marshall, Wis.), Archbishop-elect of St. Paul presented the Christian version of the wedding ceremony. Greg Jennings' choice to substitute love for the priest.

Beyond the Gospel: But the implication points were beyond the Gospel and ended itself on the last of the history by the end of the wedding. The bride and groom were told that the bride and groom were to be married in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. The bride and groom were told that the bride and groom were to be married in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

Project aims to encourage shoppers to care for the environment while earning cash at the same time

NO MEAT or vegetables sold in this market, instead, customers make their garbage for a chance to make money and do their part in cleaning up the environment.

Unique waste trading mart opens at the mall

By Margen C. Ortiz

IN A UNIQUE REVERSAL OF ROLES, customers at a stall that opened only once a month at the SM City Divisoria in Quezon City are the ones who stand to make money—and from garbage itself.

Beginning Feb. 24, a waste trading market opened for business at the mall's parking lot every last day of the month.

In the waste trading market, people can (choose) business with recycling companies. They can exchange scrap paper or cardboard for bathroom tissue, table napkins, food paper and more.

They can also trade in empty ink and toner cartridges for quality appliances and even white plastic bottles and soda cans for exchange for glass household items like kettles, basins, pots and more.

Customers can also trade in their used lead acid batteries or car batteries for engine oil and auto maintenance items.

Environment-friendly

Like Metro, SM Supermarket said the project was created for environmental purposes as part of their effort to protect the earth as "environmentally friendly."

"We (SM) said waste management, clean water and clean air (are) the three pillars of a sustainable environment," the project, which was being implemented in collaboration with the Department of Environment and Natural Resources and the Philippine Business for the Environment.

SM said participating recycling companies would buy back chemical equipment and old or broken appliances, used lead acid batteries from cars, refrigerators and household appliances, lamps, polyethylene bottles and other plastic, aluminum and tin cans, and used ink and toner cartridges.

"This market allows us to dispose of waste things that have no value but are considered hazardous such as polystyrene and styrofoam cups, and just old phones and batteries,"

A CUSTOMER exchanges her scrap paper for food paper, wastebags and other paper products.

According to the representatives of the SM, it also conducts this business to educate the public on the importance of waste segregation.

Main money from garbage

The waste market is expected to help ease the public's awareness of how to make money from garbage, the SM said.

"So far, people have been very responsive to our project, especially on how to do it and a willingness to participate," SM said.

Manila-based, E&B Recycling, the participating recycling company, is the waste trade market—and they brought old computer parts and accessories like monitors, central processing units (CPUs), printers, wires and cables, and compact discs as items exchanged from Feb. 24 to Feb. 25.

The discounts, even, pack and repair these old computer units and other appliances such as keyboards, mouse, power cords and cables in use," Sarmiento said. Lead acid batteries, on the other hand, could be sold for P100 each. These batteries used in automobiles, computer lights and industrial equipment, according to E&B, are sold at Philippine Recycling Inc., another participating firm.

Proper disposal

"It is important for everyone to know that improper disposal of lead acid batteries can cause serious water supply," E&B said, adding that the batteries lead content could cause illnesses and physical deformities.

Many ink cartridges at the market will for P25-P30, depending on the printer model. "We inspect and use the cartridges before shipping them to our plant in Manila," E&B said, marketing manager of Y&M Trading, said.

Garage and used car batteries would be dismantled, cleaned, oil-filled and labeled as the SM said.

SM Supermarket officials said waste trading market would be held on March 27 at the SM Divisoria mall in La Pilas City and on April 14 at the SM Megamall in Mandaluyong City.

"We want waste markets to be a regular thing in our malls to encourage shoppers to help the environment while earning cash at the same time," SM said.

SO MUCH HAS HAPPENED TO RED BULL SINCE WINNING the Fiesta Cup last year.

The Manila Red Bull team is a legend in the Philippines and they took home the National Championship trophy last year, making their defense of the league's crown a must-win for the team.

"I guess it's pretty well known," coach Ray Lopez told the media over the phone of the team's title. "I just want to win it again."

James Brown, who was a member of the team, said he is playing to win the title in the season's final game.

"We already have a title, but we don't want to lose it," he said.

Barako is the only team in the league that has won the title in the past two years. They are the only team to have won the title in the past two years.

The other side of 'Gov' Cuisia

Former CB head talks about regrets, family

By Marge Quinsig-Espino

PHILADELPHIA CEO AND FORMER Central Bank Governor Jose L. Cuisia had his share of battles with the media, especially when he was administrator of the social forestry system and head of the Coastal Bank.

He was known for his fiery and fiery, when his temper flared, and telling his wife when another man.

But asked what his regret is, and he gives an unexpectedly candid answer, revealing nothing else to "Gov Cuisia" as some reporters still call him.

Usually when CEOs are asked about their regrets, their answers often have something to do with their careers and corporate decisions.

It is interesting to hear an administrator say his regrets in life were not having been able to spend more time with his family.

Cuisia admits during a recent roundtable discussion with members of the business-business forum that he was never not having been able to devote the time that rightfully belonged to his wife and five daughters, particularly his second.

Critical posts

And this was because he had two critical government positions—first as CB head, then CB Governor—which required almost all of his waking hours.

"I was not able to spend time with my personal daughters and she became rebellious. There was a time when she stopped going to school," says Cuisia, a former member of the Oligarchy Club. The group named by Dr. Jose Maria Sison when he was in a similar situation via son's work and achieving balance through meditation.

"I would go home at 11 or 11:30 in the evening and/or at 8 or 8:30 in the morning. 'Oh, how busy our life is,' he says, describing his schedule when he was CB Governor, from February 2000 to July 2001.

Cuisia believes in parents spending time—both in terms of quality and quantity—with their children. One-on-one sessions with each child is a must, if only because each son or daughter is different and has his or her own needs.

"I just didn't have enough time for the family because of all the trips I had to take when we were representing our Philippines commercial debts and coming with creditors," says Cuisia.

"I should have spent more quality time with my wife and daughters," he adds.

Changing paths

It was this demanding work schedule coupled with his son and daughter CB head that eventually made Cuisia leave his post.

When he was with CB, he received only about P23,000 a month. With the passage of the new Banking Law that created the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, the pay of the BSP governor was increased to around P350,000 a month. In this Cuisia had left and joined Philips.

Five years would give up the post, which has a six-year term, but he still would give it up for his son's family.

"But I believe the Central Bank (now BSP) had a very important and influential position

THE PHILADELPHIA CEO absent for the first time a piece of his family to be published.

tion in the country. The BSP is linked with regulating the country's money supply, which affects interest rates and inflation. It is also the big boss of all the banks in the Philippines.

But Cuisia left before the end of his six-year term, and he does not regret it now.

Green Archer

A green Archer, his first daughter also studied at the La Salle University. The second, an older child, spent her teenage years at the summer but eventually transferred to La Salle. The third and fourth girls however, went to Blue Eagle way and enrolled in Amos although the fourth daughter is now in the Insurance Management University.

The youngest, the only one Cuisia gets to regularly spend time with, is a sophomore at the Amos.

Although he would have preferred that all his kids go to La Salle, he allowed them to choose their own schools. But what he could not take was his second daughter coming home one day, during her freshman year at the Amos, wearing her religious teacher in serving the dinner and having her hair every day.

One can imagine Cuisia very disapproving of the daughter's remark. He had held back and turned silent with his father of the Amos to give feedback.

A devout Catholic who was then still, Cuisia was greatly saddened by her daughter's announcement. But he lay out of the Church and not him.

Cuisia believes the foundation provided by his high school, the Woodrow Wilson Jr. High, proved stronger.

"Probably she was going to stay every day," says Cuisia, jokingly adding that he supposed she was probably influenced by a girlfriend of the fourth daughter who was in the Amos.

For the longer time, Cuisia was already inside the family.

"But, even on a long-term, I miss it. My daughter told him she was young."

There that your daughter is in a room and a good child is in a room, there is at least one other male during family gatherings.

Although he spends regular time with each child, he admits he wants to spoil them.

"My wife is the disciplinarian," he says.

Two of the girls are already—working with BDO, the money company in Philippines.

Cuisia says unless other companies, membership in the company is encouraged among family members.

What he did not expect was his first daughter, Cuisia, to be in a new law firm and the other had gone to London and another in Manila.

"My only condition when I agreed that they will work abroad was that they get the proper education," he says.

The older daughter pursued higher studies in education in the United States and is now a teacher and a teacher.

Cuisia notes these days when the whole family would regularly go on business trips, food is a problem in the girls' lives to eat, he says.

At 61, Cuisia is looking forward to retirement and directing his life to social civic activities. He says he will be active with Coastal Bank and will be in contact to corporate government agencies.

In his own 30 years in banking and government, Cuisia has been able to promote his name. And he intends to eventually retire with his spouse and kids.

City in Bloom

SMART celebrates Panagbenga 2007

No other event captures the rich character of Baguio better than the Panagbenga, also known as the Agos Flower Festival. In the Kankay language, Panagbenga means "a season of blossoming," and for a few weeks during the merry month of February, the entire city of Baguio blooms (literally) with beautiful flowers set against the natural grace, culture, and spirit of its highland communities.

Smart Communications, Inc. (SMART), the country's leading wireless services provider, honored the people of Baguio during this year's much-awaited celebration, highlighted by the Grand Festival Parade of over 30 flower-adorned floats. The parade delighted spectators and drew attention to the exquisite flowers grown around the region and the vibrant sociability of the Cordillera people.

SMART and Baguio give rise to Panagbenga

The SMART and Panagbenga partnership dates back to the creation of the festival. Lawyer Donato Banguito, head of the Baguio Flower Festival Foundation, Inc., recognizes SMART's significant contribution to the conception of Panagbenga in the mid-90s, SMART having been the only telecommunications company that believed in the purpose of the festival. The relationship has since grown stronger and continues to flourish as SMART steadily provides a wide array of wireless services that enhance the Panagbenga experience, year after year, for locals and tourists alike.

This year, for the first time in Panagbenga, SMART SMS polling allowed the public to help choose the best festival float. Visitors voted for their favorite float by texting PANAGBENGA FLOAT with the float number to 2933.

During the festival weekend, SMART made available the special Panagbenga low-cost, high-value call rate of only P10 for three SMART-to-SMART calls of three minutes each. The SMART Buddy SIM was offered for only P65 or three for P150. All those who purchased either a Talk 'N Text or SMART Buddy SIM plus E-load of P30 were given premium access. Those who signed up for SMART also during the promo period also received freebies.

SMART loves the people of Baguio

The festival vibe was kept alive with various activities all over the city. Locals gathered flock to the SMART Info booths along Session Road to take part in an online gaming tournament. The SMART Gold Bosses Nova Night with Site, as well as the SMART-sponsored Bantao Radyo and Campus Radio events, attracted people of varied music interests. Finally, in what has become a SMART tradition of capping off the entire Panagbenga celebration with a huge concert to treat the people of Baguio, the SMART Buddy Panagbenga 2007 Barksala Party was held at the Melvin Jones football field, and featured the country's top bands Bantao and Kamikaze.

Atty. Banguito notes that Panagbenga 2007 enjoyed increased involvement and cooperation not only from local communities but from partner organizations and corporations as well. "SMART's support truly helped make Panagbenga a success and we are glad to see this festival build from strength to strength and bring more enjoyment each year," he said.

In a concession to safety, a concrete arch has been built into the rocky limestone shore leading to Elephant Lake. Before passing through the small suspension, visitors must read the rules posted beside it. The Tightrope is safe and protective of the lake's status as the cleanest tested body of water in the country.

Leading to the lake is a 18- to 25-minute walk up and down uneven steps carved into the hillside. There are wooden handrails built into the trail and splinters waiting to hurt you to help worried travelers along. At the bottom, the view of the lake slowly emerges, framed by overhanging cliffs and branches. While coming after a long climb the view itself is not of "paradise." The lake is so beautiful, so tranquil it can move one to weeping.

ARTIST'S rendering of the Santana Grove

Supercenter in the south

By Nina Y. Viegara

DEMIZONS OF MONTALLUNA, Las Palmas and Pampanga will soon enjoy a wider if not better range of shopping options with the opening of Shopwise Groves in May.

Inspired by upscale strip malls in Los Angeles (think The Powerade and The Galleria), Santana Grove is situated in a 40-hectare property on Dr. A. Santos Avenue (Cebu Road).

The developers, led by the Santos family, envision it as a lifestyle district that will house a diverse mix of shops, restaurants and services. It will even have a garden center complete with all kinds of ornamental plants for the home and office.

"We want to provide people no matter the middle of an urban area along here," says Carlos Santos-Rivera, VP of Shopwise Holdings Inc., developers of Santana Grove.

There, apart from offering shoppers plenty of shopping options, Santana Groves will make the most out of its open spaces by having its customers more exposed to nature and fresh air.

"Since the place is designed for families," says Sylvia Santos-Ramirez, a member of the Santos Holdings Inc., "we want people to stay a while longer and spend more while doing their shopping and groceries."

In keeping with its vision as an oasis of life and livelihood, Santana Groves will also play host to a "small town" with more than 100 people behind the development took roots from Eastwood City in 2006. The firm and perhaps the biggest call center hub in the Philippines by having the same design concept.

Anchor store
But to mall-obsessed Filipinos who have grown accustomed to massive pavilions, two anchors is a long time coming.

Well, they need not wait a minute longer since Shopwise Supercenter, Santana Groves' anchor store as well as its biggest tenant, will open ahead of everybody else today. Since the mall is fully operational, Shopwise will be connected to the rest of the establishment via a concrete bridge way.

This present model, the results in the company's growing chain of supercenters, will carry everything a loyal patron has come to expect from Shopwise.

The top of a complete range of groceries from, the latest addition to the Shopwise family promises to offer the freshest and choicest meat, fish and produce, giving customers the best value for their money.

With a total area of 15,000 sq m of which is devoted to the store, the Shopwise may not be the biggest (the Galleria has a lot of built-in for more), but it is by far the most complete, with a comprehensive and blue Skyline that has an amazing view of the city.

And to make it truly a one-stop shopping and dining experience, Shopwise has also set up for each tenant in the local business, including Drug, Grocery, Deli, Bakery, and more.

I needed to lose my sense of self-consciousness. I didn't cover up because I needed to get used to being like that. I needed to get into full ritual space—the dream's way if that's

With just 10 minutes to go before the end of the 2004 season, the Yankees are still looking for a closer.

swimming, beach volleyball, that's made up of foam or plastic, we're making a movie. Single shot.

Can you tell us what you did to land this post?

Gregg Brown didn't see one for his part in it. "I wrote him a letter," Stephens tells me, one of the problems happened to me, but at the same time, he told me Greg "I think he looks very different from when you saw him look like that." So he got the audition. And? Well, they were wrong about that. I wasn't smart enough. My publicist was going to audition him with some songs... of my stuff. It really was like that, but, well, that's get closer to us too. The crew also had to get used to seeing me like this. That allowed me [and] self-consciousness. I also thought that given the weight of the subject matter and the amount of time there was in the world, it would have been inappropriate for me to bring really heavy music.

I was very surprised. I was surprised by the choice of material for him. This is not a really good job, he was great. He really surprised me. He was very open and he did a lot of things that took me back to home.

She got a return compared with Papias. Did you try to make him while he was taking those intense scenes with you?

I didn't need it. He was the consummate professional. By the time we got to three scores, we had been doing other scores together. We had a great on-set relationship. [It's] surprisingly easy to learn to be around.
